Dear Ms. Heinrich,

My name is Soufiane BOUHADI, I'm 43 years old and I work as a Senior .Net Developer.

My friend Patrik Suzzi, who works in Adnovum, told me that your company is always looking for talented developers, and that it could be interested to hire a .Net Developer. Thus, I decided to apply to this position after hearing your successful story from Patrik, and getting information about your company by visiting your website.

In the last 15 years, I worked for several important companies, and I had the opportunity to participate to the building of complex projects as an experienced .Net developer. In fact, I covered different roles like Senior Web Developer and Backend Developer, and I was involved in every step of the software development life cycle. This long experience enriched my knowledge, and allowed me to acquire new skills. Thus, I learned a lot about programming languages, software patterns and architectures, and I became familiar with the most common programming tools.

By nature, I am happy to learn new things, and I always try to keep me up to date about new technologies and consolidate my knowledge. So, I decided to study for a master's degree in computer science in order to broaden my knowledge in topics like big data, artificial intelligence, machine learning and algorithmics.

I would be happy if I could join your development team and participate to the success and growth of Adnovum.

Please, have a look at my CV attached to this letter in order to get detailed information.

Yours sincerely,

Soufiane BOUHADI
