Dear Ms Heinrich,

My name is Soufiane BOUHADI, I'm 43 years old and I work as a senior .net developer.

A friend of mine, Patrik Psuzzi, who works in Adnovum has told me that your company is hiring a .net developer. Thus, I decided to apply to this position after hearing your successful story from Patrik, and getting information about your products by visiting www.adnovum.ch.

In the last 15 years, I worked in several important companies, and I had the opportunity to participate to the building of big projects as a member of the development team. In fact, I covered different roles, like Senior Web Developer and Backend Developer. I gained a lot from my professional experience, from the self-satisfaction of being a part of successful projects, to the enrichment of my knowledge and the acquisition of new skills. In fact, I learned a lot about programming languages, software patterns and architectures, and I became very familiar with the famous programming tools.

By nature, I am happy to learn new things, and I always try to keep me up to date about new technologies and consolidated my knowledge. So, I decided to study for a master's degree in computer science in order to broaden my knowledge in topics like big data, artificial intelligence, machine learning and algorithmics.

I would be happy if I could join your development team and participate to the success and growth of Adnuovum.

Please, have a look to my CV attached to this letter in order to get detailed information.

Yours sincerely,

Soufiane BOUHADI
